

What do I Say?

The teacher is showing a picture to the class. Someone stands up in front of you, so you can't see. What should you say to them?

Two people are standing and talking in front of the bus. You would like them to move in. What do you say to them.

You forgot your library book at home. The rule is; you can't sign out more books until it is returned. Your class is signing out materials for a book report. You found a book you need for your report. What could you say to the library assistant.

You lost your pencil that has a swirly design on it. You see a person that appears to be using a pencil that looks the same. What do you say to them?

Two students are playing checkers. You would really like to play too. What do you say?

Your hands are full of books and your art project. You come up to the door and there is someone standing there. What could you say?

The clip art is from <http://office.microsoft.com>. It can be used for educational purposes without copyright infringement.

© Cynthia Montalbano, In Spontaneous Speech, 2009. (CJMonty.wordpress.com) Unauthorized use and/or duplication of this material without express and written permission from this blog's author and/or owner is strictly prohibited. Excerpts and links may be used, provided that full and clear credit is given to Cynthia Montalbano and In Spontaneous Speech with appropriate and specific direction to the original content

Your teacher reminded the class that they needed to return the permission slip for the field trip next week. Your water bottle leaked in your back pack and made your permission slip unusable. What should you say to your teacher? 	You accidentally bumped another student's desk and their books and papers were knocked to the floor. What do you say? 	You see a new student eating by themselves in the cafeteria at lunch time. You would like to make them feel welcome. What could you say to them?
You are standing in line for lunch. The student behind you keeps getting too close to you and bumping into you. What should you say? 	Someone asks you if you want a peanut butter sandwich but you don't like peanuts. What should you say? 	You are trying to work at your desk and the sun is shining in your face. What could you say to your teacher?

The clip art is from <http://office.microsoft.com>. It can be used for educational purposes without copyright infringement.

© Cynthia Montalbano, In Spontaneous Speech, 2009. (CJMonty.wordpress.com) Unauthorized use and/or duplication of this material without express and written permission from this blog's author and/or owner is strictly prohibited. Excerpts and links may be used, provided that full and clear credit is given to Cynthia Montalbano and In Spontaneous Speech with appropriate and specific direction to the original content

You are trying to listen to the teacher but another student keeps talking to you. What should you say? 	The teacher told you what date your science report is due, but you didn't hear it. What should you say? 	Someone is telling you at lunch that the new kid looks funny because he has a funny haircut. What could you say?
You are eating out with your friends for a birthday party. The waiter asks you what you want. You want a hamburger but you don't like pickles. What could you say? 	Papers were handed out, but the papers were gone before they got to you. What do you say to the teacher? 	When you come back from recess, someone is sitting in your chair. What do you say?

The clip art is from <http://office.microsoft.com>. It can be used for educational purposes without copyright infringement.

© Cynthia Montalbano, In Spontaneous Speech, 2009. (CJMonty.wordpress.com) Unauthorized use and/or duplication of this material without express and written permission from this blog's author and/or owner is strictly prohibited. Excerpts and links may be used, provided that full and clear credit is given to Cynthia Montalbano and In Spontaneous Speech with appropriate and specific direction to the original content