EXT. LAKE - LATE AFTERNOON

A blue 1985 Ford Taurus sits on the side of a FROZEN LAKE surrounded by dead winter trees and patches of icy snow on the ground. FOG obstructs the view through the car windows.

INT. CAR - LATE AFTERNOON

PERRY and JANIE sit in the back seat of the CAR, intensely making out as he goes from unbuttoning his own shirt, to unbuttoning her's.

JANIE
(laughs)
Perry! Come on.

PERRY
Come on, babe. We're all alone out here.

He kisses her neck.

EXT. LAKE - CONTINUOUS

An old, rusted jalopy of a MOTOR HOME pulls out from the trail through the woods, coming upon the lake, only meters away from the couple's vehicle.

INT. CAR - CONTINUOUS

Janie lay up against the car door, Perry passionately kissing down her chest, pulling at her clothes. She notices the distorted image of the camper drive up through the fog on the window.

JANIE
Perry, wait.

Much to his dismay, she pushes him off of her and wipes the window clear with her hand.

JANIE(CONT'D)
There's someone here.

PERRY
Shoot, the cops?

They both peer out of the window, staring at the camper just sitting idle by the side of the lake.

PERRY
Ah, who cares. They won't bother us.
