

BLOG 5

Home Sweet Home :

My family and I moved into a three-bedroom, two-1/2 bathroom town house that's closer to my school. Let me tell you one thing about this house, almost everything is made out of wood: wood floor, wood stairs, wood furniture, wood cabinets and wood panels. The owner is a professional gardener. He designs and sprouts out tons of ideas to make a simple garden truly an amazing site. Even though this house "lives" with a petite sized yard... there's a big fish pond, a miniature all wood pagoda, a small vegetable garden, healthy fruit trees AND a grape stand. Now I can pick the juicy and fresh grapes in front of my house; my mom can pick the organic vegetable from the yard!☺

The owners' daughter, used to play piano. One day my mom brought up the fact that I also play piano. That's when the owner said he could lend us his daughters' piano! That definitely was real lucky for me!

This town house has two floors plus a basement. In the basement, there's a game room, guest room, storage room and even a play/karaoke room! My three favorite parts about this house is:

One, there's a monitor near the front door allowing you to take a peek at "the visitor."

Two, neighboring the kitchen sits a small counter, with the name of "Angela's bar tending station!"

Last but not least, the basement, because I've never had a basement before, and I find it..."roomy☺."

The monitor is a small security screen on the wall. Whenever the doorbell gives a "call," the screen shows the fellow who waits for your reply at the front door. "Angela's bar tending station serves you with all types of drinks from coffee and tea... to water and coke!! And guess what?? It's all free! Although the station is quite small, its open 24/7! Just wake up the lady snoring on the 2nd floor! Come back soon!" ☺ The basement just seems special to me. Why? Well of course it's because it gives me the space to play. My mom put a ping-pong table down there. Also, I am going to have a sleepover party with my three cousins this weekend. I'm so super excited to enjoy the basement with them together.

