

Enclosed you'll find some very important information concerning the sale of your home.

For most people, a home sale is the most important financial decision of their entire life. It's surprising how little research some homeowners do before they put their home on the market. All real estate agents are NOT the same so you'll want to select the one you trust to handle the sale of your home carefully. The information enclosed will help you with that.

In the last several years I've helped hundreds of people sell their homes. Many have come to me only after having horrible experiences and long delays so hopefully you'll use the handy information to avoid all of those issues on your property.

I look forward to hearing from you regarding any questions you may have as to the sale of your home.

Sincerely,

Greg Luther
