

RHEUMA RESEARCH ROADSHOW SCOTLAND

Anne O'Brien of Keele University talks about her PMR physiotherapy research at the Keele roadshow

Did you know that PMR and GCA are two of the least researched rheumatic illnesses, even though PMR is one of the most common? This is changing as more researchers around the country are listening to people who have PMR and GCA and realizing that we need a lot more research.

Have you ever wondered what research is going on into PMR and GCA around the UK?

PMRGCAuk is holding a series of 'research roadshows' around the UK, to bring you, the patients, doctors and researchers together to find out what is happening, what exciting discoveries may be round the corner, and how we can work together to encourage more research.

We invite local rheumatology and immunology specialists to present their work and discuss what it means for diagnosis and treatment. We also invite guest speakers from other parts of the country to join us, and share research that we have learned about at previous roadshows. We are building up a national map of all the research taking place, to share with you, the patients, your family and friends, and GPs.

Our roadshow in Kirkcaldy, Fife, is organized in partnership with PMRGCA Scotland, and is funded with a grant from the Wellcome Trust. It's free to attend.
