R- ring

vsp- very small picot

lp- long picot

+ join

p- picot

lj- lock join. Make a lock join by using a crochet hook to pull shuttle thread through the joining space.

This creates a loop and you pass the shuttle through the loop then tighten to remove excess thread. In these patterns a lock join is often joined to the space between chains. Where to do the lj is indicated in brackets. For example lj (C2 & 3) means a lj in the space between the 2nd and 3rd chain.

rw- reverse work; turn the tatting towards you to change the direction the chain is facing SCMR- self closing mock ring. See <http://www.janeeborall.freesevers.com/SCMR.pdf> for instructions.

Day 3

For today you need 2 yards of white thread wound CTM on a shuttle.

Start at first ring left of the stem.

R 3 + (p on first ring left of the stem) 3

C 8 p 8 p 8

R 3 + (p on next ring) 3

C 6 p 6 p 6

Diagrams explained

— picot

☆ start here- pattern goes clockwise joins between rings are regular joins a line represents a chain

a number beside the line is the number of double stitches circles are rings

a number in the center of the circle is the number of ds between picots so in this diagram you do 6-6-6-6

If you have a bangle:

Fill a shuttle with thread and cut from ball. You will catch the picots at the same time that you are tatting around the bangle, see the Tatsaway link provided for help on catching the picots. If you are not comfortable with making the rings then just tat around the bangle (remember that W= wrap)

I find it easiest to start with a ring.

*R 4 lp 4

Make the first wrap include a picot

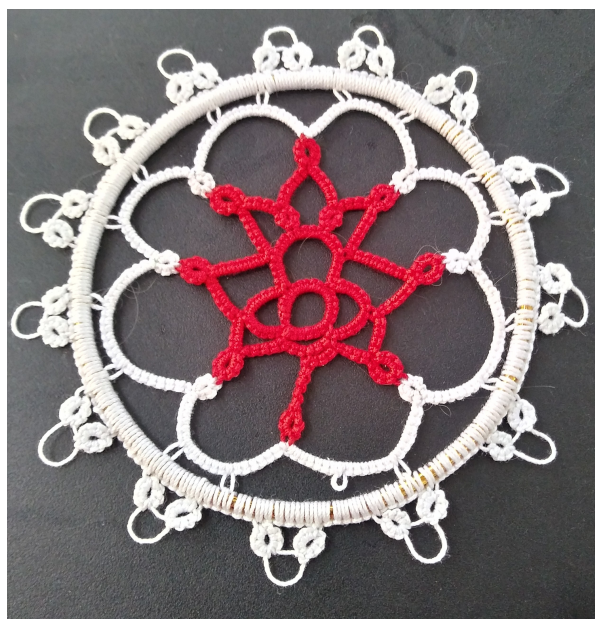

W 6

R 4 + (lp) 4

W 6*

Repeat from * to * around bangle picking up the picots from the center motif as you go.
Add extra stitches as needed.

Please note that the bangle is not in the diagram
