

New Improvements to Reverd Automatic Scam Stopper in 2018

Report unsolicited, harassing phone calls. Let other people know about possible scam or unsolicited robo calls. Reported numbers will be blocked on phones using the free Reverd app. Verify phone numbers and make sure they are not blacklisted.

SHERIDAN, Wyo. - Oct. 23, 2018 - PRLog -- As promised we redesigned and reworked the entire system implementing the latest technology. More and more people from around the world report harassing phone numbers directly from their phones. We made sure that our system is fast and capable to handle all those reported harassing phone number and also to allow for multiple real time phone number verification requests with minimal latency.

What are the major changes in 2018: "In order to meet the need for global instant protection from harassing scam and robo calls we implemented the modern Symphony high performance framework. Symphony allows simultaneous access to different types of databases. It allowed us to incorporate and use Elastic Search (powerful software also used by NASA) in our backend for quick access to curated database of reported numbers" - said CEO Mark McCoy. "We now provide access to our database of more than a Million reported blacklisted phone numbers for both private persons and corporate users. Improved performance of the Reverd.com system will allow us to properly handle the huge amount of complaints we receive."

The Reverd automatic phone scam stopper has proved efficient and capable to automatically stop annoying scam phone calls on both iOS and Android phones. It protects user phones automatically when the Do-Not-Call registry fails.

Thousands of people around the world are using the Reverd app to stop unwanted phone calls automatically and efficiently. The Reverd app reduces stress and disturbances by protecting phones from unsolicited scam calls. Reverd automatic scam stopper app works wherever you go: in the city, in the mountains, in a desert... It doesn't even need Internet connection in order to work. It is not like any other app. It is better, intelligent and efficient. Reverd app is available for both iOS and Android devices.
