Teaching Students about Census

The Statistics in Schools (SIS) program of the U.S. Census Bureau provides data, tools, and activities that educators can incorporate into their lessons to help teach statistics concepts and data analysis skills to students. The activities and resources are segmented by subject (English, geography, history and social studies, mathematics and statistics, and sociology) and grade (from kindergarten through high school) so statistics education can be brought to any classroom. The U.S. Census encourages all school districts to participate in Statistics in schools. Please contact your superintendent to begin the discussion about getting your local schools involved.
