HIGHLY DESCRIPTIVE DOMAIN NAMES

Digital Assets: targeted branding domains that are exceptionally descriptive in nature or innovative in how they were created. Attributes, all of which justify their intrinsic multimillion-dollar proposed costs. These domains are a part of a private listing.

Important Notes: (1) The pricing for the domains above is subjective in nature and is priced in the multimillions. Before unfairly criticizing cost, perhaps the prospective buyer should think about whether he, she, or it can afford the price tags. (2) Have the buyer fully considered the construct and value of an innovative domain that they themselves did not conceive? (3) What about gratifying branding initiatives? Particularly in how the domain may optimistically impact short and long-term business goals. (4) And finally, what would the buyer pay a manufacturer for a custom-built home, an exotic luxury car, the most refined jewelry, or the perception of precious art, all while acknowledging that those material items are relatively vulnerable and can be easily destroyed? Yet the value of a widely popular domain name can live forever. For example, the name "Jesus Christ" can be found thousands of years later in a domain name. Imagine that. Hence, if one can't rationalize the intrinsic worth or sheer value of a powerful domain name, then perhaps they're not realizing the immense rewards of descriptive domain names and branding, which dates back thousands of years.

Important Notes Continued: In order to protect some domains that may actually be linked to ideas exhibited on or offline, those domains may or may not be available on this list. An example of such domain(s) would be the one that's set aside for this niche automotive idea.
