The highlighted IP address below, 34.117.13.33, is Google with an established connection to your personal computer (PC). Likewise, you may not be able to delete Google's registry keys from your PC. That means there may be unethical and/or unlawful access to your PC from either Google employees, the company's representatives, or stakeholders. To what extent the access is occurring needs to be investigated by the U.S. government. Why? Because there may be a violation of your civil liberties or Fourth Amendment rights.

