

Search Still on For Marines

SEATTLE, Jan. 9 —(AP)— An official court of inquiry, ordered by the marine commanding general at El Toro, Calif., has been in western Washington the past several days taking depositions and investigating and sifting reports on a marine transport plane missing with 32 men aboard since December 10. The group came to the Sand Point naval air station today and will probably stay another day. The plane disappeared over western Washington on a San Diego-Seattle flight.
