

Guard Air, Units to Watch for Discs

Portland, Ore., July 7.—(AP)—Pacific northwest national guard air units organized a three-state air patrol today to watch for "flying saucers."

Colonel G. Robert Dodson, commander of the 123rd fighter squadron here and the 116th squadron in Spokane, Wash., said camera equipped P-51's would fly two patrols daily and in addition each squadron would hold one plane on 24-hour alert to investigate any new report of the mystery discs.

Clipped By:

jamespcarrion
Thu, Nov 1, 2018