

Swedish Inquiry Fails To Solve Rocket Case

By The Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 10—Swedish military authorities said today that they had been unable to discover after four months of investigation the origin or nature of the ghost rockets that have been flying over Sweden since May.

A special communiqué declared that 80 per cent of 1,000 reports on the rockets could be attributed to "celestial phenomena," but that radar equipment had detected some objects "which cannot be the phenomena of nature or products of imagination, nor be referred to as Swedish airplanes."

The report added, however, that the objects were not the V-type bombs used by the Germans in the closing days of the war.
