

Great Plains Covenant Community

2020-2021

3030-3031

The Great Plains Covenant Community is a ecumenical religious order which gathers for times of worship, silence and accountability; then scatters to be in service with the poor, provide mutual support to group members and the community, and grow in relationship with God.

Group Covenant As a Community Gathered

We Covenant to make attendance at and participation in the Community Gathered a priority in our lives.

The Community will have six retreats this season:
2020: August 10-11, September 28-29, December 7-8
2021: January 11-12, March 15-16 May 10-11

As a Community Scattered

We Covenant to the following:

Daily Order

Pray for all members of the community.
Participate in Lectio Divina readings of the daily Psalm starting with Psalm 1 on September 1 & 2 (2 days for each psalm). On Sunday we read the Lectionary Psalm

Social Order

Embodying commitment to service with the poor, individually and as a community.

Spiritual Order

Living with the question, “When have I experienced Christ in the extending of hospitality?”

Theme and Content Presentation

The Chinese word wēijī (危機) is often mistranslated as danger + opportunity. While the first character does mean “danger”, the second character means something more like “change point”. There is, however, a wisdom in this mistranslation. Danger often requires we change in order to better protect ourselves from it, or stated more positively, it presents an opportunity to reimagine the world and our place in it.

Over the years we have been edified and comforted by the schedule and rituals of our 24 hour, Covenant Community Retreat. We must now make changes in this retreat in order to better protect those participating from the danger created by the pandemic. For many, this means not physically attending the retreat center, but participating at what we will be calling “the Place of Grace”. It is our hope and dream those participating at the Place of Grace will feel like they are in some sense present at the retreat center, and those who are at the retreat feel like those at the Place of Grace are in some sense physically present with them in worship. We need all of your help and patience in order to make this happen not only at this retreat, but for a new year of retreats.

Let us reimagine Covenant Community together.

During our content time we will provide examples of how new challenges are surmountable, at least in part, by adopting new perspectives. How do we discover and adopt new perspectives? In one example a person attempts to view this pandemic from the perspective of a grove of ancient redwood trees. In another example a Chinese farmer adopts what could be called “a meta-perspective” in judging the goodness or badness of various events in his life. Hopefully, these and other examples will show how new perspectives can open up new and exciting possibilities in reimagining our world and our place in it.

Consider the following words of Jesus from Mark 2:22... “And no one puts new wine into old wineskins; otherwise, the wine will burst the skins, and the wine is lost, and so are the skins; but one puts new wine into fresh wineskins.” Think of the new wine as the new challenges we face, and the new wineskins as the new perspective we adopt to meet these challenges.

COVENANT GROUPS

The groups for the 2020-2021 season were formed based upon where member reported that they were likely to be participating from during the year due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Guidelines for Respecting Privacy

Guiding Principles

The guiding principles for respecting privacy include safe space, mutual respect, and common sense or discretion.

Why is Privacy Important?

The Covenant Community seeks to foster a deep sense of sacredness and safety so that people can be freed to explore their relationship with God, themselves, each other, and creation. Intimate, tender moments are often part of the Covenant Community experience; therefore, it is important to give attention to appropriate boundaries in this kind of setting. Since we aim to create a cloistered community, there is an implication of privacy that all involved should be aware of and respect.

Confidentiality

It is essential that what is shared during plenary sessions, healing services, in listening circles, and other such moments of a personal nature be treated with the utmost confidentiality and respect. It is best not to make assumptions about what is personal and what is not. In order to maintain the Covenant Community's sense of safety and sacredness, information that is shared within the context of community should remain within that setting unless permission is granted by the person who first shared the information. What seems trivial to you may be very personal to someone else. Always give priority to maintaining confidentiality.

Privacy and Modern Communication

In this digital age, there are new challenges to respecting privacy that need special attention. For example, be mindful of the public nature of web pages, blogs, and social networking sites (Facebook, Twitter, etc.) when using such media to share about your own experiences of the Covenant Community. Always ask permission before tagging someone in a photo or mentioning them in a post. Just because someone has a social media account does not mean they are active or want to be included in others' posts. Speak only of your own experience and take special care not to divulge information about others. Take care to respect confidentiality when corresponding through email and be considerate in the use of others' email addresses. Please obtain permission before sharing someone else's personal information, such as phone numbers, addresses (physical or electronic), birthdays, and so forth outside the community.

Lectio Divina

Lectio Divina literally means "divine reading." This holy reading is a way of praying the words of the Bible. Early Christians used Lectio Divina as a meditative tool to go deeper with God and these holy texts.

Lectio Divina is not a Bible study. It is not meant to trip any of us. Instead, this practice reveals to us what God is saying to us. Often God may be calling us to quiet our racing, pulsing hearts. At other times, God may be calling us to dive right into life's mystery by providing us with doubts and uncomfortable questions. No matter where this practice seems to lead us, it will always bring us just a bit closer to God. Go ahead. Taste the living words of these ancient texts. You may be surprised by what you discover!

Get Started

What you will need:

- The scripture (Three versions have been provided for you)
- Time set aside to focus
- Patience and an open mind

1. Read the text slowly and carefully. Close your eyes and take a deep breath. Let your mind focus on this one task of discovering what God is saying to you - it's a high and holy task. Read it out loud. Read it silently. Let the words wash over and enfold you.

2. Reflect on the text. Just as Mary "pondered these things in her heart," let the words cause your mind to wonder, to excite, to revel. Read it more than once. Read it twice. Read it three times. Read it forty times. Whatever it takes to let the words pierce your heart and sink into your mind.

3. Pray. Open your heart to God. Now that your heart has meditated on the passage, let your heart focus on God. Let God illuminate the words you read. Pray for yourself. Pray for others. Pray that we all may find hope and sense in God's Word. Pray.

4. Rest your mind. This is when you can really listen for God's voice. Don't try to pray or concentrate on the scripture you read. Rest. Peace.

5. Action. Bring your meditation to life. Did God give you a challenge? Did the ancient words bring new light to a tired situation? Just as the Gospel proclaims God's love, go out and do likewise.

Psalm 98

Oh sing to the Lord a new song,
for he has done marvelous things!
His right hand and his holy arm
have worked salvation for him.
2 The Lord has made known his salvation;
he has revealed his righteousness in the sight of the nations.
3 He has remembered his steadfast love and faithfulness to the house of Israel.
All the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God.
4 Make a joyful noise to the Lord, all the earth;
break forth into joyous song and sing praises!
5 Sing praises to the Lord with the lyre,
with the lyre and the sound of melody!
6 With trumpets and the sound of the horn make a joyful noise before the King, the Lord!
7 Let the sea roar, and all that fills it;
the world and those who dwell in it!
8 Let the rivers clap their hands;
let the hills sing for joy together
9 before the Lord, for he comes to judge the earth.
He will judge the world with righteousness,
and the peoples with equity.

Psalm 98 ESV

O sing to the Beloved a new song,
for Love has done marvelous things!
By the strength of your Indwelling Presence,
we, too, are called to do great things;
we are set free through Love's forgiveness and truth.
Yes, your steadfast love and faithfulness are an ever-present gift in our lives.
All the ends of the earth have seen the glory of Love's Eternal Flame.
Make a joyful noise to the Beloved all the earth;
break forth into grateful song and sing praises!
Yes, sing songs of praise extolling Love's way;
lift up your hearts with gratitude and joy!
Let the voices of all people blend in harmony,
in unison let the people magnify the Beloved!
Let the sea laugh, and all that fills it;
the world and those who dwell in it!
Let the waters clap their hands;
let the hills ring out with joy
Before the Beloved, who radiates Love to all the earth.
For Love reigns over the world with truth and justice bringing order and balance to all of creation.

Psalms for Praying/ Nan C. Merrill

Sing to God a brand-new song.
He's made a world of wonders!
He rolled up his sleeves,
He set things right.
2 God made history with salvation,
He showed the world what he could do.
3 He remembered to love us, a bonus
To his dear family, Israel – indefatigable love.
The whole earth comes to attention.
Look – God's work of salvation!
4 Shout your praises to God, everybody!
Let loose and sing! Strike up the band!
5 Round up an orchestra to play for God,
Add on a hundred-voice choir.
6 Feature trumpets and big trombones,
Fill the air with praises to King God.
7 Let the sea and its fish give a round of applause,
With everything living on earth joining in.
8 Let ocean breakers call out, "Encore!"
And mountains harmonize the finale –
9 A tribute to God when he comes,
When he comes to set the earth right.

The Spiritual Practice of Parables

Parables aren't simply a kind of neat, clever way that Jesus and others taught moral or ethical truths. They're not simply a way to teach systematic theology through symbols. They are an expression in the service of his announcement of the Kingdom of God.

The definition of a parable from the Merriam-Webster Dictionary, "A usually short fictitious story that illustrates a moral attitude or a religious principle." According to this definition, the point of a parable is to take something unclear or unpersuasive and make them clear and persuasive toward a moral or religious point.

- Most of Jesus' parables addressed situations very familiar with his ancient listeners. By talking about familiar situations, Jesus introduced concepts of God's Kingdom into the minds of his listeners.
- Interpreting the parables of Jesus as short, moralistic lessons can cause problems. Instead, we should see these stories as important ways that Jesus communicated how he was bringing the Kingdom of God.
- Instead of reading a parable and asking, "How is this parable about me and my relationship to God?" We should reverse it and ask, "How is this about Jesus and his inauguration of God's Kingdom?" When we start there, then we begin to see the new way of living that Jesus began with his announcement of the Kingdom arriving through him.

What's the different between the way we think of Parables and the way Jesus used them.

Jesus uses parables in a way that requires listeners to work for them. This is often contradictory with how many people today interact with the parables of Jesus, expecting their message to be immediately applicable to us. In the famous parable of the Good Samaritan, Jesus uses a story to expose a deep contradiction in the listener's perspective. Instead of answering a question, Jesus uses parables as a subversive tool to correct unspoken assumptions in his day.

The parables of Jesus have a few key differences from this common idea of making things clearer. Instead of making points more clear, people were often puzzled and surprised by Jesus' parables. The parables are one of the many ways that the Prophets and Jesus launched their mission of announcing and bringing into reality the reign and rule of God among a new kind of people.

Reflection: Create your own Parable of the COVID-19 situation to date, if you wish to share it with the group send it to  and we will share it after the retreat with others.

Or if creating a Parable is not your thing you are invited to practice Visio Divina and view the image on your screen from the video and when you are ready, ask yourself instead of asking yourself "How is this parable about me and my relationship to God?" reverse it and ask, "How is this about Jesus and his inauguration of God's Kingdom?" then we begin to see the new way of living that Jesus began with his announcement of the Kingdom arriving through him.

THE PARABLE OF THE TRAPEZE

Turning the Fear of Transformation into the Transformation of Fear

by Danaan Parry

Sometimes I feel that my life is a series of trapeze swings. I'm either hanging on to a trapeze bar swinging along or, for a few moments in my life, I'm hurtling across space in between trapeze bars.

Most of the time, I spend my life hanging on for dear life to my trapeze-bar-of-the-moment. It carries me along at a certain steady rate of swing and I have the feeling that I'm in control of my life.

I know most of the right questions and even some of the answers.

But every once in a while as I'm merrily (or even not-so-merrily) swinging along, I look out ahead of me into the distance and what do I see? I see another trapeze bar swinging toward me. It's empty and I know, in that place in me that knows, that this new trapeze bar has my name on it. It is my next step, my growth, my aliveness coming to get me. In my heart of hearts I know that, for me to grow, I must release my grip on this present, well-known bar and move to the new one.

Each time it happens to me I hope (no, I pray) that I won't have to let go of my old bar completely before I grab the new one. But in my knowing place, I know that I must totally release my grasp on my old bar and, for some moment in time, I must hurtle across space before I can grab onto the new bar.

Each time, I am filled with terror. It doesn't matter that in all my previous hurtles across the void of unknowing I have always made it. I am each time afraid that I will miss, that I will be crushed on unseen rocks in the bottomless chasm between bars. I do it anyway. Perhaps this is the essence of what the mystics call the faith experience. No guarantees, no net, no insurance policy, but you do it anyway because somehow to keep hanging on to that old bar is no longer on the list of alternatives. So, for an eternity that can last a microsecond or a thousand lifetimes, I soar across the dark void of "the past is gone, the future is not yet here."

It's called "transition." I have come to believe that this transition is the only place that real change occurs. I mean real change, not the pseudo-change that only lasts until the next time my old buttons get punched.

I have noticed that, in our culture, this transition zone is looked upon as a "no-thing," a noplac between places. Sure, the old trapeze bar was real, and that new one coming towards me, I hope that's real, too. But the void in between? Is that just a scary, confusing, disorienting nowhere that must be gotten through as fast and as unconsciously as possible?

NO! What a wasted opportunity that would be. I have a sneaking suspicion that the transition zone is the only real thing and the bars are illusions we dream up to avoid the void where the real change, the real growth, occurs for us. Whether or not my hunch is true, it remains that the transition zones in our lives are incredibly rich places. They should be honored, even savored. Yes, with all the pain and fear and feelings of being out of control that can (but not necessarily) accompany transitions, they are still the most alive, most growth-filled, passionate, expansive moments in our lives.

We Covenant to the following:

Reflections on “new dimensions”

Unsettled world

Unsettled world, where people long to find their way, to feel secure, from lives of turbulence and rush
we come, to seek your peace, our God,
your word to hear, our faith to live.

Unsettled world, where money rules and greedy systems call the tune:
for strength to keep our values straight
we come, with trust in you, O God,
your word to hear, our faith to live.

Unsettled world, where angry poor
from grinding need at affluence stare, with tears and thirst for truth and right
we come, with longing in our hearts,
your word to hear, our faith to live.

Unsettled world, unsettled church,
whose structures creak and doctrines swirl,
by faith, and in the strength of Christ,
we strive, in true community,
your word to hear, our faith to live.
