Quick DIY Backyard Games to Spend Your Weekend

Nowadays everyone is so busy doing their work. They almost forget about their true happiness; their creativity means what they can do? Or what can they create?

So today we bring you a few ideas to create your DIY backyard games.

DIY games to play -

1. Tic-Tac-Toe - We all know about this game and the rules right? We can make this game more interesting and make it outdoor backyard games. For this, you can use a tree stump or a big cartoon for the board. And for X and O you can use some painted stone.

2. Chessboard - Sometimes you get bored playing indoor games so you can make a chessboard game into a part of various backyard games. For this, you can make square boxes for the board and paint them or you can use grass carpet to mark the color portion and for chess, you can use a bigger size board.

3. Movie Theater - If you like to watch movies then this is for you. You can make a movie theater in your backyard using a projector and a screen and you don't have to spend so much money on this. And it will far better than a real theater and cozy of course.

4. Diy Waterbed- Waterbed is one of the best DIY games to play. For kids, it is not only a bed but they play with it. Especially, In summer they love to play on it. You can make it more interesting by adding some toys to the water.

5. DIY Background Kerplunk Game - Kerplunk is one of the most interesting and easy to create DIY outdoor games. It is invented by Eddy Goldfarb in 1967. Not only child adults also love to play this game. You can play this game at your home party it will be lots of fun.
